

ANDREA BETH DAMSKY

Andrea Beth Damsky is a National Board Certified Acupuncturist and Nutritional Consultant with a varied background. Professionally, she's worked in journalism, synagogue administration, teaching Hebrew school, and tutoring b'nai mitzvah students. She is a lay cantorial soloist who still thinks of studying for the rabbinate.

Politically, Andrea Beth has been active since her teen years in environmental, feminist and LGBTQI politics, having helped elect Democrats for the past fifty years. She is former President of National Organization for Women in Atlantic City, NJ. Andrea Beth is a founding member and Past President of San Diego Progressive Democratic Club, and currently serves as Vice President of Political Action, for Democrats for Peace in the Middle East. Andrea Beth is a California Democratic Party delegate, and a member of the Party's Resolutions Committee. Her most recent achievement is being elected Chair of the Environmental Sustainability Commission of La Mesa, California.

She is happily married to her wife, and lives in San Diego, California.

