Jill Jones Lazuka will be marking the grave of one of her grandmothers. Mark September 28th on your calendar. It's an honor that Tennessee will be hosting the first grave marking. Jill has invited the Tennessee members. I will be going and would love to have anyone that wanted to attend to ride with me. I hope to be marking my ancestors in the future.

Please continue visiting and posting on facebook. If there is an activity near you, we could make a trip out of it. I need to get the scholarship information out to all the agriculture departments. We need to put these brochures from one end of the state to the other. Feel free to represent the society at geneology fairs. I will be attending the Cumberland Gap Jamboree in October. Cindy Waters will be assisting me. We may be using some of your photos for our display table. We have a powerpoint and brochures, I will be happy to send you.

The National Board meets in November, so please send me information on everything that you have been involved in for the farmer so I can include it in my report. Beginning with the next issue, I will be acknowledging an outstanding member. A small gift will be sent to that member. Also, don't forget to recruit your friends and family. It entitles you to a member to member pin. Yes, we need more ribbon.

The next national meeting is in April in DC. Each attendee gets a new tool for their ribbon. These cannot be bought. You have to be In attendance to receive one. This year, the tool was a hammer.

Have you met Remington?

You can't be a part of this group and not adore Remington. Remington travels around the states and supports the society. He even helped lead the first meeting. You can even see him on facebook. He is quite an attention grabber. Made of metal, he is quite friendly.

Tennessee needed a mascot. So we have our own cow to represent Tennessee. Jill Jones Lazuka suggested the name "Rosie" and that she should be a suffragist cow. Names were voted on and Rosie was the winner. She will soon be adorned in a yellow rose and sash.

Rosie

Keep up the outstanding job. Send emails to felicia@juno.com.
