Verb (Introduction)

What is a Verb?

A verb is a word that shows:

- Action – what someone or something does.
- State of Being – what someone or something is.
- Possession – what someone or something has.

A verb tells us what someone ^{action} does is, or has.

Verb = Action + State of Being + Possession

Verbs Show Action:

Action verbs tell us what a person, animal, or thing does.

Examples:

- The boy plays football.
- Birds fly in the sky.
- She writes a letter.
- We dance at parties.

Common Action Verbs:

Run, Jump, Read, Write, Sing, Dance, Eat, Play

Verbs Show a State of Being

Some verbs do not show action. They show a condition or state.

Examples:

- I am a student.
- She is tired.
- They are friends.

Being Verbs:

am, is, are, was, were

Verbs Show Possession

Some verbs tell us that a person, animal, or thing owns or possesses something. These are called verbs of possession.

Examples:

- I have a bicycle.
- She has a new dress.
- They have many books.
- The dog has a long tail.

Common Verbs of Possession:

- Have
- Has
- had - Past

Why Are Verbs Important?

Verbs help us:

- Express actions
- Describe situations
- Form complete sentences
- Communicate clearly

➤ Without verb:

The girl a book.

➤ With verb:

The girl reads a book.

Every sentence needs a verb.

Without a verb, a sentence is incomplete.

Quick exercise

- Rahul plays cricket.
- The cat sleeps.
- I am happy.
- They study daily.
- I have a car.
