What Is a Webinar?

- A webinar is an online seminar
: A presentation into a real-time conversation from anywhere in the world.
- Webinars allow large groups of participants
: To engage in online discussions or training events and share audio, documents or slides
- Even when they're not in the same place as the meeting host or in the same room where the event or presentation is taking place.

Dear National Presidents,

In 2019, we are starting a new Webinar.

This webinar will be held approximately four times a year.

On April 15th, we will begin its first Webinar.

The first speaker is OMEP's main representative at the United Nations, Maria Pia Belloni.

Theme is Call to action: investing in early childhood development for migrant and refugee children.

The schedule is as follows.

Monday, April 15, 2019 9:00 - 9:40 am (New York time)

For more details, please see the attached file.

I look forward to your participation.

Thank you.

OMEP WEBINAR 2019

Policy Forum Series I

Call to action: Investing in early childhood development for migrant and refugee children.

Monday, April 15, 2019 9:00 - 9:40 am (New York time)

Speaker

Maria Pia Belloni Mignatti
Professor (retired) of European Union Law, Faculty of Political Science,
University of Pavia (Italy);
Chair, NGO Committee on Migration;
UN Representative, OMEP;
Member of the Advisory Group of the Early Childhood Development Peace Consortium (ECPC)

Forced migration is an increasing global challenge: children and families are obliged to leave their homes for many reasons. Many of the children on the move are under the age of five. In countries of origin, transit and in host countries, they encounter traumatic circumstances with a daily violation of their rights. Scientific evidence highlights the importance of early support for young children and their families under adverse conditions. It is encouraging that we are now witnessing commitment to support early childhood development in a migration and refugee context. It is now the time to turn these commitments into reality. We need to work together, in a coordinated manner because, if we change the beginning of the story, we change the whole story.

Dear kyoryoung,

Thank you for registering for "ESD Series 1 – Call to action: Sustainability as the Centrepiece of High Quality Preschool".

Research shows that the path to sustainability begins with educating the next generation, beginning in their earliest years. The Scandinavian perspective on early education and education for sustainable development (ESD) emphasizes children's, parents', and teachers' roles in learning about and contributing to a sustainable world. What are the characteristics of an integrated Early Childhood program based on sustainability? What is the sustainability "content" we want children to learn? What skills and competencies do we want them to exhibit? How can we use play-responsive pedagogies and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) in ECEC? How are the values of our past in the early childhood field reflected in the ESD movement and how do they illuminate our future?

Please send your questions, comments and feedback to: secretaryworld27@gmail.com

Dear all,

As many of you may know, we, OMEP have started our first webinar on April 15, 2019.

The first theme of lecture was based on OMEP's Policy form, 'Call to action: Investing in early childhood development for migrant and refugee children'.
The guest speaker was Maria Pia Belloni Mignatti, OMEP representative of UN New York.

A brief introduction of the lecture is as follows:
Forced migration is an increasing global challenge: children and families are obliged to leave their homes for many reasons. Many of the children on the move are under the age of five. In countries of origin, transit and in host countries, they encounter traumatic circumstances with a daily violation of their rights.

Please check the relevant handouts (translated into 3 languages-english, spanish, french) attached in this mail.

A total of four webinars are scheduled for 2019.

We have planned total four webinars for 2019. Starting from first webinar held in April, we will be hosting several webinar series relevant to OMEP's work towards children in July and October, January 2020.

We plan on continue to contact and inform each national committee regarding OMEP webinar and we would like to ask for your interest and participation.
