

Mountain Stage Radio Show Joins VuHaus

Boulder, CO (December 3, 2015) – Nationally syndicated public radio show, Mountain Stage of West Virginia Public Broadcasting, joins VuHaus, a growing network of public media organizations who share a common mission to support emerging artists and to be a premier music discovery source for audiences around the world. The VuHaus network encompasses the country’s leading engines for music discovery: WFUV in New York City, KCRW in Los Angeles, KEXP in Seattle, WXPB in Philadelphia, KUTX in Austin, KTBG The Bridge in Kansas City, KXT in Dallas, opbmusic in Portland, and now Mountain Stage of West Virginia Public Broadcasting.

The VuHaus stations film local, emerging and established artists playing live music in their studios, on location, and in intimate settings, with one-of-a-kind interviews, and live performance streams. VuHaus curates this exclusive content providing a single platform for music discovery in an ever-expanding video collection from America’s most vibrant music scenes.

"It's a new era in public media, and here at Mountain Stage we are looking to VuHaus as the next step for creating and distributing our content," states Adam Harris, Mountain Stage Executive Producer. " We're looking forward to connecting with a whole new audience through VuHaus and inviting that audience to experience our radio show, live or on air, in the future."

Mountain Stage will curate a local page (www.vuhaus.com/westvirginia) on the VuHaus platform. In addition, and as a celebration of Mountain Stage’s 32nd Anniversary Show, a live webcast will be streamed on VuHaus Sunday, December 6, 2015 starting at 7pm EDT. The show will feature The Cactus Blossoms, Lindsay Lou & the Flatbellies, Noah Gundersen, Amy Helm & the Handsome Strangers and Josh Ritter. Watch it live at www.VuHaus.com.

“Mountain Stage has been producing some of the best live performances on the radio for 32 years,” comments VuHaus Program Director, Mark Abuzzahab. “Now we'll be able to experience some of those great songs in a new way on VuHaus.”

About Mountain Stage:

Mountain Stage (MountainStage.org), with host Larry Groce, has been the home of live music on public radio for more than 30 years. Founded in 1983 as a state-wide radio program produced by West Virginia Public Broadcasting, Mountain Stage quickly grew into a nationally syndicated staple of public radio. Today it has over 150 affiliates across the country and an ever-growing digital audience through it's podcast and the NPR Music website (npr.org/mountainstage).

About VuHaus:

VuHaus is a non-profit, non-commercial organization comprised of public media's leading Music Discovery radio stations. The human-curated, state of the art music discovery video platform features performances from the studios of the participating stations, and is available via mobile and web.

The VuHaus network includes WFUV in New York City, KCRW in Los Angeles, WXPB in Philadelphia, KUTX in Austin, KTBG The Bridge in Kansas City, KEXP in Seattle, KXT in Dallas/Ft. Worth, opbmusic in Portland and Mountain Stage in West Virginia. VuHaus received initial funding from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and is operated by its founding partner Public Media Company, a national non-profit organization focused on maximizing the impact of public media through innovation and strategic partnerships. www.VuHaus.com
