CULTURAL CARE

Grows well in most soil types which are well draining. Aeoniums will tolerate cool, frost-free regions over winter if kept dry. No pruning is generally required. Apply a slow release fertiliser during early spring.

The genus of Aeonium encompasses around 35 species with most being native to the Canary Islands but some are also to be found in Madeira, Morocco and East Africa. They are primarily coveted for the sculptural shapes and colours of their foliage as well as their ease of culture in warm to hot climates.

A. 'Poldark' is very compact with a well branching habit. Aeoniums can make striking displays mixed with other succulents such as those in the Sedum BLOB range and S. Dynamite whilst members of the salvia genus make great floral additions with similar likes in growing conditions. For a stunning container combination try mixing with Sedum GREEN BLOB to accentuate the lime green centres.
