The Program has grown rapidly since it established, and has successfully partnered with public and private organizations to provide asset building and financial management service to the community. With continued support from various agencies, we contribute to the works of helping low-income individuals and families to start a path to upward mobility.

Stanley Moy

Established in 2013, the Chinatown Service Center Asset Building and Financial Management Program (Program) aims to provide financial management classes and individualized case management services to low-to-moderate income individuals and families living in the greater Los Angeles area. Our primary focus is to offer practical advice in financial management and planning. Clients will better understand their financial situations, apply gained knowledge to resolve financial issues, and build financial capacity.
