The sleek machine, right, shown in red, can be customized down to the smallest detail with materials such as leather, wood, carbon, or aluminum, and any finish of paint one desires.

TOP: Stable and resilient, the GT3 SportDesign steering wheel column offers up to 1.3 in. of height and reach adjustment. Rimmed in black Alcantara® leather, it is easy to grip and remains in firm hands, even on sporty drives.

Designed to push limits with more power, speed and manageability than its predecessor, the 2014 Porsche 911 GT3 is engineered with superior aerodynamic handling. True to form and not for the faint of heart, this slick ride is adapted for steering agility while cruising the highway or besting speeds at the racetrack. Its chassis is designed to handle hairpin turns that can easily cover a quarter mile in 11.8 seconds. Propelled by an innovative high-revving flat-six, 3.3-liter engine that generates a power of 475 hp at 8,250 rpms, the 911 peaks at a dizzying 9,000 rpms. From 0 to 60, this precision instrument sprints to the finish line in just 3.3 seconds, with a top track speed of 195 mph.

Open the door and slip inside the cockpit with a motorsport feel, where the finest interior seats and a steering wheel clad in Alcantara ® leather are accented with Galvano silver and brushed aluminum. At an estimated starting price of $130, 400, the 911 GT3 is available at Braman Motorcars. For more information, call 561/684-6666.
