In Connecticut, we're proud of our excellent public schools. It's one of the key reasons families choose Connecticut as their home. And none of us want that to change.

But our economy and our declining student enrollment numbers have created a new reality.

And our schools aren't addressing student needs equitably.

We need to find efficiencies so that we can protect the schools we love and direct our education dollars to the classroom.

Please join Senate President Pro Tem Martin Looney, Senate Majority Leader Bob Duff, and Education Committee Co-Chair Douglas McCrory for a forum about school district regionalization.
